EIGHT WOULD BE DAIRY JUDGES

Men Will Take Trip Through Western Missouri.

Eight men are trying out for the dairy judging team which will represent Missouri at the National Dairy Show at Chicago October 23. They are planning an extended tour through Western Missouri the last of this month to visit the prominent dairies in the vicinity of Independence, Kansas City and Liberty. Thus the students will come in contact with men who have been the most successful in breeding and feeding dairy herds.

There are $1,600 worth of scholarships and loving cups to be awarded at the National Dairy Show, given by the dairy breed associations and separator companies to encourage study in this industry.

A PLEA FOR TRADITIONS

"B. G." Objects to "Outsiders" Wearing Tiger Colors.

Editor The Missourian: A mark of honor, which in the past has been held most sacred by the students of the University of Missouri is beginning to lose its significance because it is becoming common.

The Varsity colors, particularly in the form of Tiger jerseys, are worn without regard to their meaning. Columbia's delivery boys, high school students, working men and even undeserving University students can be seen wearing the black sweaters with old-gold stripes.

The Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics, in an endeavor to re-establish an old custom, passed a rule last year (one inch old-gold stripes on sleeves of black jersey) that official Tiger jerseys should be issued only to men trying for Varsity teams. On account of the large supply on hand of old jerseys they found it necessary, however, to equip the freshman teams with them this year. But hereafter all except Varsity teams will be supplied with black sweaters. At the end of a man's competition in intercollegiate athletics he will be given the outfit he used that season. The only man, then, who will be eligible to wear the official tiger jersey on the streets will be an M man. The Committee provided that freshmen winning their numerals could wear a tiger sweater with half-inch old-gold stripes on the sleeves.

The merchants of Columbia have promised not to sell the regulation tiger jersey, also that they would furnish numeral sweaters only to the ones who had won the right to wear them.

These conditions make it almost impossible for any one except a letter or numeral man to wear a Tiger jersey. Others who wear them must have stolen them or bought them from some one who had no right to sell them. Each student should make it his duty to find out if the wearer of a Tiger jersey has won that right. If not, he should be asked to stop wearing it. If he continues to wear the jersey it should be taken away from him. Traditions once lost are hard to recover. Let's save this one. B. G.

MULE MARKETS BUSY

European Armies Buying Animals in St. Louis, Says Visitor.

St. Louis does little wholesale business in the Southwest now, according to W. S. Stephenson, a visitor at the Athens today.

The greatest activity is in the horse and mule markets for European armies. Groceries form the principal shipments. Mr. Stephenson also stated that New Orleans had been rather dull until the price of sugar advanced. The pool now formed to buy cotton may be the victim of shrewd speculators who will buy up the cotton for less than the usual aid price of 19 cents a pound.

THE WEATHER.

For Columbia and vicinity: Unsettled weather tonight and Friday, probably showers; not much change in temperature.

For Missouri: Unsettled weather tonight and Friday, probably showers.

Weather Conditions.

The distribution of atmospheric pressure continues rather erratically arranged as shallow lows and weak highs. The pressure over the entire country is diminishing, at the same time the shallow depression that was central in Kansas yesterday morning has become steeper although it has remained practically stationary; the resulting rain area, however, is much farther eastward, now crossing the Mississippi River.

Heavy rains occurred in northern Missouri, southern Iowa and eastern Nebraska, and lighter rains in the upper Mississippi and Missouri watersheds.

Temperatures are quite low in Wyoming, Montana and Alberta, ranging from about the freezing point to 10 below.

The indications are that mostly unsettled weather will prevail in Columbia for the next 36 hours, perhaps with showers.

HARTSBURG MURDER
YIELDS NO ARREST

the murder. Two hammers and one hatchet, all new, were found on the place. What was supposed to be a stain of blood was found on one of the hammers. Mathews said he had bought them a month ago and was "surprised that Millie hadn't painted them, too. But I slung that brush away and she ain't had another since."

All of his clothes showed splashes of paint, with much red showing, but it was perfectly evident that it was paint. Some believed the stain on the hammer to be paint, rubbed off a table, as it was not a large or clear spot of color.

The case now rests on the evidence gained yesterday at the coroner's inquest. No arrests have been made and the prosecuting attorney says he will await some further evidence before any arrests or other developments in the situation are made.

SORORITY GIRLS TO ARM

Drunk Man Incites Kappas to Purchase Revolver.

The young women of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority are collecting funds from the alumnae to buy a revolver. They assert that fortifications are necessary to protect the house from marauders.

The cause for their alarm was a strange man who explored their premises Saturday night and then concealed himself behind an ash can in the back yard. The frightened girls watched him from the windows until several girls returned from a dance with their escorts, who charged the ash can without waiting for reinforcements. The man behind it ran and was hotly chased over the golf links, to be run to earth at last in the shrubbery behind the Alpha Tau Omega house.

The captive, who was a trifle drunk, protested that he was only hunting possums, but his pocket knife was taken from him and he was handed over to the police.
